Court Observations

Judge Maren stated that the twelve-month duration did not appear facially excessive, but repeatedly questioned why a fifty-mile geographic limit made sense for an employee who serviced national accounts.

The Court described the customer non-solicitation provision as 'considerably more tailored' to Northstar's asserted goodwill interest.

Evidence

Northstar did not present evidence that Carter downloaded confidential files after giving notice. The judge asked counsel to explore a negotiated restriction focused on named customers and confidential information.

Next Step

The Court deferred ruling for fourteen days to permit settlement discussions.
